Greetings!!!

The department has become the largest in the institution with four undergraduate programmes, a postgraduate programme and Ph.D. Programme. The total number of students in the department is 716 and will soon be growing to 1000. The achievements of the department during the last year is portrayed in the Newsletter. I would rather focus on the challenges and the matters deserving immediate attention. The growing demand in the IT industry has given the institutions in Kerala, inspiration to increase the intake or to start allied courses.

The maintenance of quality and also the adherence and accomplishment of outcomes stipulated by the programmes deserves utmost importance. The desired level of attainment of outcomes of the new programme will lead to a separate realm of placement and career. The reaccreditation of NAAC and compliance audit of NBA is the priority of the department. The institution has to get itself included in the National Ranking introduced by the leading agencies in the immediate future itself. The Programme results have to be improved and brought above 80% marks. This will lead to an improvement in the number of students eligible for placements.

The research activities and enrolment of research scholars has increased over a couple of years. More faculty is presently eligible for the supervisorship of APJKTU. Encouraging quality publications of faculty and students is always the priority of the department as well as our institution. This will enhance the activity of research centre and improve quality research. The department has a good number of Ph.D. holders and majority are pursuing their academic research presently.

The department has appointed an adjunct faculty to give the students awareness about industry standards and practices. However, the gap between Academia and Industry is not at all addressed in the prescribed curriculum. Conscious efforts have to be made by the department to address the issue. More Industry projects have to be brought to the campus to bridge the gap. The challenge is to make the faculty and students equipped with new industry benchmarked technology and practices. This will be the focus of the department for the coming year. Besides that, the department must establish industry supported laboratories too.

The institution may step to the new status of being autonomous where our department should be able to take a leading role having the greatest number of programmes and student strength.

RELEVANCE OF THE B.TECH. COURSE - COMPUTER SCIENCE AND DESIGN

To address the growing need for engineering talent with skills in digital technology, AICTE has collaborated with leading industry leaders and academicians and designed a 4 years undergraduate programme on Computer Science titled "Computer Science and Design (CSD)". The programme has a small set of core courses in Computer Science and Design, and many electives which can be taken from Computer Science as well as Design and Digital Media.

The course is appropriate for those who want to deepen their grasp of the principles, boundaries, and potential of computing. This course is also appropriate for those who are capable of designing and implementing effective software solutions utilising appropriate algorithms, data structures, and other computing approaches.

This course is perfect for those who wish to comprehend design concepts and approaches and have the skills to use them to create solutions to societal and human problems.

The B.Tech in Computer Science and Design(CSD) aims to create versatile software engineers who are well proficient with computing approaches, tools and technologies and are experienced with new Media Technologies and Design approaches. This undergraduate programme combines fundamental design courses with strong programming foundations. Students who complete this degree are well-prepared for a wide range of employment in fields like games, arts, entertainment, digital analytics, mobile application development, web/product design, cyber security, multimedia, and other interactive businesses around the globe. The Job roles include Software Engineer, Games Developer, 3D Programmer, Web Developer, Programmer, Cyber-Security Consultant, Data Engineer, Database Graphics Designer, Information Systems Manager, Multimedia Programmer, Machine Learning Engineer, Mobile Application Developer and Systems Architect. Job opportunities in a variety of sectors, including Government organisations, IT industry, education and research, are available to the graduates of the CSD programme.

Computer Science and Design graduates are in high demand across the globe in the current era. FISAT is the institution standing with the highest priority for CSD admission in Kerala. The students will develop the ability to design creative solutions in areas such as animation, AI-powered gaming, virtual reality, augmented reality, etc. The ability to design can be expanded to include leveraging Human Computer Interaction (HCI) and better product visualization to solve the challenges in the present. Some of the major topics covered in this course include Programming Languages, Software Development, Website Construction, Image Processing, Spatial Computing, Media Computing, Animation and Graphics, Game Design and Development, Fundamentals of Video and Photography for Engineers, 2D and 3D Animation, Human Centered AI, Robotics, Virtual Reality etc. The first year of study has subjects common to all engineering branches, and the remaining years of study comprises of core subjects and electives in CSD under KTU. After finishing the CSD course, students have the option of continuing their education in Design, Computer Science or Information Technology.

Project Title:- "Smart Sort: An MLP Based Method for Tracking Multiple Objects Tracking in Real Time"

Team Members: Shreyas S Kumar, Narayanan V Eswar, Shemin Anto (S8 CSE B)

In today's era, people rely more and more on machines for day-to-day activities. Machines have a great role in automation in various areas of living. A large amount of image data is used to recognize objects in fields spanning from a small phone to large objects like cars, robots, and so on. Furthermore, handling multiple objects in a context enhances the same. It has a wide range of applications including Automated Driving, Traffic Monitoring, Pedestrian Behaviour Analysis, Sports Analysis, Robotics, and much more. The models trained for the aforementioned task could be optimally reduced for making it suitable for low-power devices like Raspberry Pi, provided the same competitive results are obtained, it helps in cost-cutting. This can also be used as an edge computing unit as the model requires cheap machines like raspberry pi to run. It can be integrated into devices like cameras to detect objects, reducing the work of the main server computer.

Title: "Retinal Segmentation using Improved MesNet"

Team Members: M Navaneetha, Naveen B Jacob, Kevin S Manavalan, Melvyn Joseph (S8 CSE B)

Glaucoma, Macular Degeneration, Diabetic retinopathy, etc. are some eye diseases that cause serious threats to mankind. It is important to detect these diseases earlier itself to prevent further damage to the eye and save the vision of individuals. In this project, a novel segmentation method is proposed for the retinal blood vessel segmentation from the given retinal image Improved Mes-Net. Improved Mes-Net includes MES-Net which adopts U-Net as the overall architecture and includes three additional blocks: the MFP-Block, the ESCE-Path, and the SE-Block for richer feature extraction that improve the performance of the U-Net model. The MES-Net model is concatenated with the U-Net model to produce the result accurately in less. Hence, it has excellent clinical applications for computer-aided diagnosis. The proposed model can be further extended in producing segmentation results for other medical image segmentation problems.

FISAT has the best-in-class facilities for its students. Whether it's faculty who is ready to go extra mile for supporting the students academically, extra curriculum or even personal; or if it's infrastructure, has one of the most beautiful college campuses with almost all amenities; fully equipped labs, we never faced any situation wherein we didn't have enough devices/equipment to work on our projects/ lab. A fully functional library with more than ample academic and non-academic books is also worth mentioning.
